

Code of Conduct

Sample code of conduct with realistic but incomplete expectations for analyzer testing

Field	Value
Document Owner	Human Resources
Version	1.1
Effective Date	2026-03-01
Review Cycle	As needed
Classification	Internal

1. Purpose

This Code of Conduct sets out the behavioral expectations that support a respectful, responsible, and professional workplace. It is intended to guide day-to-day decisions and reinforce the values that shape how the organization serves customers, works with one another, and represents itself externally.

Employees are expected to act with honesty, respect, and good judgment in carrying out their duties.

2. Scope

This Code applies to employees, managers, temporary personnel, and contractors working on behalf of the organization. It applies in the workplace, during business travel, at work-related events, and in work-related digital communications.

The principles in this Code should also inform conduct outside work where personal actions may reasonably affect the organization's reputation or working relationships.

3. Respectful Workplace

Everyone is expected to contribute to a workplace that is respectful, inclusive, and free from inappropriate behavior. Employees should communicate professionally, listen to others, and avoid conduct that undermines teamwork or dignity.

Harassment, bullying, discrimination, and retaliation are inconsistent with company values and will not be tolerated.

4. Integrity and Professional Judgment

Employees must act honestly and in the best interests of the organization while carrying out their responsibilities. Records, reports, and communications should be accurate and should not be misleading.

Employees should avoid situations where personal interests could interfere with professional judgment, and should raise concerns when they are unsure how to proceed.

5. Use of Company Resources and Information

Company assets, information, and systems must be used responsibly and for legitimate purposes. Confidential or sensitive information should not be disclosed to unauthorized persons.

Employees are expected to follow applicable policies relating to technology use, privacy, and information protection.

6. Outside Relationships and Gifts

Employees should use sound judgment when dealing with vendors, customers, and other external parties. Gifts or hospitality should be modest and should not influence business decisions.

Where a situation could appear inappropriate, employees should consult their manager or Human Resources.

7. Reporting Concerns

Employees should speak up promptly if they observe misconduct, unsafe behavior, fraud, policy violations, or other concerns. Concerns may be raised with a manager, Human Resources, or another appropriate internal contact.

Reports will be taken seriously and reviewed appropriately.

8. Leadership Responsibilities

Managers are expected to model the standards in this Code, to respond to concerns appropriately, and to support a culture of fairness and accountability.

Leaders should encourage open dialogue and reinforce expectations through regular communication.

9. Compliance and Consequences

Failure to comply with this Code or related policies may result in disciplinary action. The organization may update this Code as needed.